Scientists Hope To Uncover Some Planet Mysteries

WASHINGTON (AP) - Earth men reached out 36 million miles through space Friday for their first close-up "look" at the mystery-shrouded planet Venus.

What they saw through the electronic eyes of the Mariner 2 space probe must be analyzed and evaluated over the next several weeks but scientists were elated at the outcome of the $47-million experiment

And So To Sleep

Todd Crooks, three and one-half-year-old Minneapolis boy, gets acquainted with "Porky," a gasbreathing piglet toy which helps make operating rooms less terrifying for young patients at St. Barnabas Hospital. The anesthesiologist there has found that "kiddies" trust animals more than they trust human beings. "Porky" squeaks and at the same time blows out sleep-inducing gas, and makes youngsters forget such things as needles.

First Integrated Church Opened

EAST LONDON, South Africa (AP)-What is believed to be the first church in racially segregated South Africa formed especially for holding multi-racial services was opened in this Indian Ocean Port City recently.

Nine people - three whites, three coloreds (Eurafrican mulatoes) and three Africans-were received into the church last night as foundation members.

The service was attended by nearly 100 people of all races, with whites in the majority.

"There was no tension but a real gladness in being together,' said the Rev. H. J. D. Robertson after the service in the new North End Presbyterian church in Park Street Mr. Robertson said he thought of forming a multi-racial church about four years ago.

His church is regarded as an experiment by the Presbyterian Church of South Africa. If it proves successful, more multiracial churches will be opened in

"LET NOTHING YOU DISMAY

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of char-acter and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. With-oul a strong Church, neither de-moracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reason why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which eeds his moral and material suport. Plan to go to church regu-arly and read your Bible daily.

One of a million carolers. And on Christmas Eve she will bring comfort, reassurance, joy to many.

Mrs. J. is blind. She has never seen the carolers . . . but eagerly she listens for their arrival.

Mr. H. is an invalid. His nurse invites the boys and girls in and serves them cocoa. Mr. H. loves their happy smiles as well as their joyous voices.

Little Paul R. broke his leg last Saturday. That's why he's not caroling this year. But they'll be around to sing "Silent Night" under his window. That one is Paul's favorite.

When you hear the carolers on Christmas Eve, pause and consider the Love that inspires their singing. That Love was born in a Bethlehem stable one holy night centuries ago.

Restoration Of A Pledge

Two years ago when Federal Trade Commission lawyers sought access to confidential census information filed by a Chicago firm they were investigating, the U.S. Supreme Court turned them down.

Thirteen months later, in a curious aboutface, the court ruled government lawyers could have a company's own file copy of its confidential report to the Census Bureau. By some strange reasoning, the court held this accommodation of antitrust lawyers did not undo the presidential pledge of census secrecy in effect

Fortunately, before the FTC and Justice Department could get their inquiry in full operation, Congress amended the census law and closed the Census Bureau's secret files to government agencies.

Federal Judge Reynier J. Wortendyke Jr., ruling on the demand by government antitrust lawyers that a New Jersey company provide them the confidential census reports, declares a U.S. District Court has no authority to compel a corporation or an individual to produce such data.

Reinforcement of the census secrecy law by Congress will make the work of policing corporate mergers and possible antitrust violations more difficult. But more important, the census law amendment, as now interpreted by Judge Wortendyke, appears to have restored the longhonored pledge that information acquired by the government on a pledge of confidence will be kept confidential.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Supreme Effort

The principal business of the Supreme Court of the United States is to discover the precise meaning of words written toward the end of the 18th Century and to apply that meaning, including intent and motivation, to the second half of the 20th Century. One reason that this country has survived so long with only one civil war is that its written Constitution has been made flexible by Supreme Court decisions. Otherwise, it would have burst through its seams many times as it

There have been times when the Supreme Court was regarded by so-called Liberals as a vicious institution which existed to restrain progress; at other times, the Conservatives regarded the Supreme Court as the very work of the Devil, designed to alter our form of government without regard to the Constitution or the rights of Congress under the Constitution. It depends upon whose goose is cooked. These days, the Liberals find the Court very comforting.

Recently, there has been fierce excitement over a part of the First Amendment, particularly over the words "establishment of religion." Decisions on this subject have been numerous since 1947. The Supreme Court has felt itself called upon to decide an undecidable subject, namely, what is meant by "establishment of religion" and how it applies to school children. An established church in the 18th Century meant one supported by the State such as the Anglican Church is in England. But what does

It is difficult to understand what business some of this is of the Supreme Court. Schools are the most local of our institutions. Down to the village level, there are school committees and school boards. Nevertheless, in the case of Everson v. Board of Education, the Court held that state payment for bus rides for children who go to parochial schools is not a violation of the Constitution.

It was a correct decision if one had to be made. The case should have been thrown out of court because no American child should be deprived of benefits given to any other American child.

The next big case, McCollum v. Board of Education in 1948, was an insult to intelligence and decency. In this case, a woman who claimed to have an atheistic child felt that it placed him in an umbrageous position when other children went on released time and he sat alone. Therefore, she wanted released time on school premises abolished. The Supreme Court agreed with her, giving the impression that the Supreme Court preferred atheism. This impression was, of course, incorrect. The Court was merely trying to interpret the word, establishment, and only proved that it was defective in its definition.

In Zorach v. Clauson in 1952, the Court corrected an erroneous impression by deciding that released time was permissible off school premises, requiring an adjustment of school schedules, to accommodate the needs of children for religious education.

In Torcaso v. Watkins in 1961, the Court held that the state may not require an oath affirming belief in God as a condition to holding State office. So the phrase, "So help me God," was knocked out. In fact, in many courts, an oath is taken by merely raising one's hand rather than by placing it on the Bible. This decision is definitely antagonistic to three centuries of tradition and history on this continent and is absurd reasoning, because if an oath is not taken to God, to whom or what is it

In the case of Engel v. Vitale, the Court held that a state-established prayer - even though it is nonsectarian-violates the First Amendment. This decision created consternation throughout the country and gave rise to a wide-spread agitation against the Supreme

Now, arises the question of Christmas and Hanukah celebrations. Christmas celebrations have taken place in American schools as long as there have been schools. In some places, where the majority of the children are Jews, there have been Hanukah celebrations. Christmas has become, next to the Fourth of July, the leading national holiday of this country; Hanukah is more a nationalistic than a religious holiday among the Jews and represents the exploits of Judah Maccabeus and his brothers against Rome and the Roman pollution of the Temple. Both are joyous holidays.

Why children should be deprived of joy only a bigot can understand.

President Dorticos Implies Cuba Wants To Resume Trade With U. S.

WASHINGTON - Perhaps the most significant diplomatic conversations in recent weeks have not been between President Kennedy and Soviet Deputy Premier Mikoyan, but between President Dorticos of Cuba and some of the Communist ambassadors. They indicate that Cuba would like to resume trade ties with the United

President Dorticos, who doesn't rant and rave like Fidel Castro and is probably much more representative of real Cuban sentiment, told Communist envoys in a firm but friendly way that it was difficult if not impossible for Cuba to operate without its former economic cooperation with the U.S.A.

He even went so far as to say that Cuba would be willing to pay American claims for the seizure of American property by the Castro regime-though they would have to be paid in sugar, not cash. Sugar, he said, was the equivalent of cash in foreign trade.

The amount of American property seized by Castro is considerable, and includes three big oil refineries, several big American cattle ranches, various sugar plantations, sugar refineries, automobile agencies, hotels, and night who have helped him in the past, then it means that Cuba and the United States might resume somewhat the same relationship as Finland and Soviet Russia. Finland experienced a bitter war with Russia in 1940, but in recent years has complete independence and excellent trade relations.

Peacemaker Macmillan?

Prime Minister Macmillan has spurned Moscow hints that Premier Khrushchev would welcome an invitation to London. sian diplomats have hinted that Macmillan could serve as matchmaker in bringing Khrushchev and President Kennedy closer together. In reply, Macmillan got off a letter to the Kremlin suggesting a test-ban agreement as the first step toward better understanding.

Khrushchev's reply, while paying lip service to the need for better relations, offered no hope for test-ban concessions. As a result, Macmillan has decided not to issue any invitations to Khrushchev until he gets more tangible signs of a thaw in the

New Immigration Look

A quiet transformation has taken place inside the Immigration Service since Kennedy appointed Ray Farrell commissioner one year ago.

He has not only raised the morale of his inspectors but changed their attitude toward foreign visitors. His predecessor, stern, suspicious Gen. Joe Swing, Ike's classmate at West Point, looked upon all visitors as probable crooks and Communists. Under Farrell, the inspectors watch out for undesirables, but try to make the visitors feel welcome. Typical of the Immigration Service's "new look" are the 33 attractive, friendly receptionists whom Farrell has stationed at the nation's 12 international air-

They greet the newcomers with a friendly smile and welcoming word, help them arrange their documents, assist overloaded mothers.

Note-Attorney General Robert Robert Kennedy met the supervisory receptionist, Retta Ann Kirchmier, the other day and learned she had attended the London School of Economics. Remarked Kennedy: "The President as well as my brother Joe went to the same school.

Backstage In The Diplomatic

President Kennedy is secretly of Cuban military installations.

This gives the United States an excuse to continue aerial surveillance and relieves Kennedy of his pledge not to invade Cuba. Kennedy is not seriously worried about hidden weapons in Cuba and would rather not have his hands tied by a pledge not to invade. The three Scandinavian countries-Norway, Sweden and Denmark-have offered to form a small standing Army as the nucleus for a permanent United Nations police force. The soldiers would be trained for police action anywhere around the world and would serve under United Nations command. Though the Chinese Communist Army has been pulling back from occupied Indian territory, as promised, they have left civilian administrators and police behind to keep the area under Communist control. The only way the Indians can oust them is to renew the Himalayan War. The Air Force revolt against Guatemalan President Ydigoras was hardly put down before another was reported. The American Embassy in Guatemala City reports that army officers are now plotting against pro-U. S. Ydigoras and warns that he will probably be overthrown next time. The Chinese Communists are now wooing Premier Phoumi Nosovana, the Laotian strong man, whom the CIA under Allen Dulles picked to lead the fight against the Communists. The Chinese have invited him to Peking, are now giving him the red-carpet treatment.

Who Is To Blame For Shutdown Of Newspapers?

WASHINGTON - "Human Welfare" - The boasted slogan of the "liberal" and the proclaimed objective of the politically minded in public office - has a strange and ironic sound today.

For in the biggest city of the nation, 20,000 human beings are forced out of work and tens of thousands of others are idle because of a shutdown of the newspapers. Millions of persons are deprived of their primary source of daily information.

Stores which depend on large advertisements to attract business during the Christmas season are being badly hurt in two cities -New York and Cleveland, Ohio. Commercial losses run up to millions of dollars a day - all this because of the stoppage of nine daily newspapers in New York City and vicinity and of the daily papers in Cleveland.

Who is to blame? The answer is that human beings themselves are to blame. It's a kind of war. There's aggression and cruelty in it. Acquisitiveness is exalted. Extortion is openly condoned as employers are threatened with ruin unless union demands are met. The labor union's goal is to get what it demands, irrespective of whether the jobs of the strikers themselves become imperiled just as similar jobs have, indeed, been ended for all time in many cities in the country. High production expenses - due chiefly to rising labor costs - have deprived fourfifths of the cities in the United States of a rival newspaper in the afternoon and morning fields. The principle that nobody could interfere with a free press in America has been repeatedly violated, and countless numbers of workers have paid the penalty of an irresponsible unionism.

In New York City, for instance, the leaders of the 3,000 members of the International Typographical Union there have precipitated a strike. All the other unions also composed of human beings with an obligation to judge their fellow men fairly - are schooled to be indifferent to the merits of the dispute by agreeing not to cross the picket lines of a striking union. The employers are compelled to negotiate contract after contract with the individual unions — teamsters, news handlers.

By David Lawrence

delivery men, reporters and others. Any one of the unions thus can bring about a tie-up of the whole plant.

Are the printers underpaid? Everyone naturally wants more wages. The newspaper publishers in New York City announced their willingness to pay $7,500 a year to their printers. The union demands over $8,000 a year. The present salary is $7,330, apart from fringe benefits.

These are relatively big salary figures - and perhaps more than is being earned nowadays by many people in America with a daily output of much more physical energy. But granting that it is a desirable scale, is a war the only way to achieve such an objective? Do the employers hold out just because they are selfish? Or are they perhaps right when they say some of them will go bankrupt if they have to pay higher wages?

Many newspapers are generally known to be operating at a deficit. One of the bigger publishing companies in New York operates at a narrower margin of profit than most newspapers in other big cities. But the union insists on uniformity of wage scales. Wages must be the same for all newspapers in New York City, no matter what the financial condition of one or more of the publishing companies happens to be — that's the prevailing concept among the

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

EMMET HUGHES - Emmet Hughes is a young man who has gone a long way in a short time. He was an editor of Life Magazine, a speech-writer for President Eisenhower, and more recently served in the same capacity for N. Y. Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller. Hughes, who has quit Rockefeller to become a columnist for a weekly news magazine, has also written a book, the reviews of which made headlines across the nation. In the book, Hughes disclosed that Eisenhower entertained serious doubts about Vice President Richard M. Nixon's abil-

Hughes' maneuverings are the subject of active speculation in Washington where everything carries political connotatoins. The capital has been wondering whether Hughes was moving away from Rockefeller, or whether his current activity was just a cover to further the New York gover-

ities to succeed him in the presi-nor's presidential ambitions. The best guessing in Washington at this time may come as a surprise, but it is to the effect that, come 1964, Hughes will be found supporting President Kennedy's candidacy for a second term in the White House.

CELEBRITY - Perhaps nowhere outside the White House do secretaries brush elbows more frequently with the great and near great of the world than those assigned to work in the office of the secretary of State, Dean Rusk. There is a constant parade of foreign government leaders, top ranking diplomats and highest level representatives of the United Nations passing by them on their way to confer with Rusk. Many times the secretaries have a few minutes to observe these figures before they are ushered into Rusk's private office.

The parade of world figures has become so commonplace to them that most times they're slightly bored, but not so the other day.

Into Rusk's outer office strode a world known figure, just back from Russia, causing one of the secretaries to remark: "This is the first time we've had anyone sensational up here." It was Gregory Peck, the movie actor, who dropped in to see Rusk after completing a picture in Russia.

This is an inhumane attitude. But union leaders don't feel that they are obliged to take into account the plight of the employer. If he goes out of business and workers are thrown out of their jobs, it is just too bad, say the leaders. Unfortunately, the major part of the unemployment in America today is directly or indirectly due to irresponsible drives of the labor unions themselves for higher pay. In some cases, they have forced automation that might never have come if there had been tolerable wage rises based on some formula that would have given both sides a chance to improve their positions gradually. Labor should be paid progressively a better and better wage right along. But employers should have a chance to earn a fair pro-

Who will regulate all this - the government? The government is run by politicians, who know there are many more labor votes than employer votes. Government is one-sided.

So the answer doesn't lie in letting the government handle the problem. The solution has to come from individual human beings as they learn something about selfrestraint. Maybe if those preachers in New York City who talk so much politics in their pulpits would join with the worshipers in the pews and begin to pray for guidance, a solution might be found. For most human beings in America, when confronted with all the facts, are fair and can settle their differences without holding a gun at each other's heads.

Too many labor leaders go to extremes in their demands because they think it popularizes them with the members and gets them the votes to stay in power at big salaries. There are no better persons than the rank and file of American workers. It should be their task to convert their leaders to the simple precepts of mutual restraint and a tolerance of the other fellow's problems as he tries hard to operate a business at a profit so as to earn a return on other people's money invested in his business, and at the same time provide jobs for the

Revolt In The Desert

By John Crosby

wouldn't cross the street to see a movie flew the Atlantic to see this one. There was a large crowd who came from Paris and another from Madrid for the opening. which may be the most brilliant of all time. The British newspapers dutifully but with a singular absence of enthusiasm hailed the picture as a masterpiece. It was certainly an event, and that may be the trouble.

I found "Lawrence of Arabia," during much of its three hours and 42 minutes, disappointing, frequently confusing and meandering, as if I were not quite sure where the film was going or what they wanted to tell me, and curiously unmoving. This may only be the measure of my own tremendous hopes. Sam Spiegel has style, taste, flare ("Bridge on the River Kwai." "The African Queen," "Suddenly Last Summer") and above all importance, and I don't think any other producer could have attracted this brilliant crowd and aroused this fevered pitch of anticipation. Perhaps I expected too much.

"Lawrence of Arabia" was years in the making, cost Lord know how many millions (Spiegel was asked how much at the premiere but said he didn't know), has a cast of thousands headed by the brilliant young Peter O'Toole as Lawrence and including Alex Guinness, Anthony Quinn, Jose Ferrer, Jack Hawkins, and Claude Rains. Its director, David Lean (who directed "The Bridge on the River Kwai") may be the greatest movie director now operating.

The film has some incredibly brilliant scenes. There's one scene where young Lawrence and his Arab guide wait at a water hole as a horseman appears over the horizon — friend? foe? — and moves slowly, slowly, toward them, which is a model of cinematic suspense. There are numberless shots of the shifting and endless sands of the desert or the rising and setting sun. There are truly great and difficult bits with the principals in the foreground and the mob in the background that are almost masterpieces.

The vastness of the desert, the complexity of Lawrence's personality (erratic, masochistic, brooding, bloodthirsty) the class of the ancient and modern worlds are all

But there is nothing like the singleness of purpose of "Bridge on the River Kwai," where building that bridge and then destroying it pulls everything into a tight knot. Here there's no such central pivot. Welding Arabia into a nation is talked about, but you feel strongly no one really cares. including the Arabs or Lawrence. For all its three hours and 42 minutes, you will find it very difficult to explain what "Lawrence of Arabia" is about, what the story is, and what happens. Suddenly after three hours and 42 minutes, the picture doesn't end, it sort of peters out.

Lean repeats in "Lawrence of Arabia" many of those stunningly effective tricks he did on "Bridge

LONDON on the River Kwai," shooting the Queen Elizabeth and Prince sun with a color camera so that Philip were there. People who you can almost feel its heat, the crowd roaring its approbation of Lawrence as he rescues a straggler in the desert, just as the prison camp soldiers roared when Guinness got out of solitary, even the blowing up of trains. Lean, I'm afraid, also commits the cardinal sin of a director. which is to become too conspicuous, to take the center of the stage, which should be more properly occupied with the story and with the character of Lawrence. My companion of the evening brought back a report from the ladies' room which is significant: "They're all talking about how beautiful the camera work is and they all think it's too long.'

Well, there's something wrong with a picture in which you talk about the camera work first. The unanimity with which everyone (even critics who wildly praised the picture) agreed the picture is too long is significant too. Three hours and 42 minutes isn't too long if the story and the people are gripping. The fact that everyone noticed the length means something is lacking, possibly

Several of the critics here have hailed Peter O'Toole's performance as just about the greatest thing the screen ever saw. Well, I disagree, and that's what makes horse races. O'Toole has an impressive bag of tricks, but he doesn't fill a screen, especially a Panavision screen, with his personality the way he ought to. Every time Guinness, playing Prince Feisel, came on (too rarely) he stole the show. Still, it's an important picture and I think you should go see it. All of Spiegel's pictures are important, different, arresting, unique. He's a truly inventive, creative, explosive producer, certainly the greatest movie producer in the world today, filling (and maybe even enlarging the role Sam Goldwyn once played in the industry. He's got imagination, taste, and guts and there are very few people in the industry who have any of those things, much less all three.

Francisco Goya, the great Spanish painter, lived two lives. He was bold and boisterous as a youth; following one of his escapades, he was found with a knife in his back. But his talent was so great in time he became a court painter where he had access to the lighter side of "Spanish town and country life in which all the ladies were young and comely and the men handsome and well turned out.

According to Terence Cawthorne, Goya became a favorite of

In 1793, at the age of 47, Goya was attacked by a mysterious illness which started rumors about his wild life. He became dizzy, deaf, and partially blind. Overexposure and overexertion were blamed because the illness followed an attempt to mend the axle of a coach. He was plagued by bouts of dizziness and head noises for some time. His sight improved eventually but he remained totally deaf for the remaining 35 years of his life. During this second period of his life, the color and character of his imaginative paintings changed entirely. Dr. Cawthorne says the change was from "gay to macabre, from colorful to somber, and from pleasant dream to ghastly nightmare.'

Some believed the illness changed his brain. Others, that his actions represented a rebellion against being stone deaf. We will never know except that Goya's behavior during the first part of his life suggests considerable emotional immaturity. This background becomes a real handicap when the chips are down and the bubble of a gay and carefree life bursts It sometimes is difficult for the average man to understand how a person can be so talented in one field yet make a complete mess of his private life. Creativity is one side of a genius; the ability to control himself and his thoughts is another. This may explain why easy to do, despite a strong conmany of our most valued and beautiful paintings, stóries, musical compositions, and other artistic endeavors were created by first class scoundrels.

Soph Sensation Paces Campers To Opening Win

Steve Vandenberg Dominates Boards, Tallies 13 Points

By TED TROXELL

Steve Vandenberg, Allegany's highly touted sophomore center, lived up to his advance billing last night in leading the Campers to an easy 68-29 opening win over Martinsburg at Campobello.

Making his first start in varsity competition, big Steve (6-61/2, 203 pounds) hit for four buckets in the first four minutes of play to send the Campers off and winging to their first victory over the Bulldogs in almost three years.

Allegany's last win over the West Virginians, a 62-59 decision, came on February 2, 1960. The Bulldogs swept four straight over the last two seasons Strictly No Contest

Martinsburg mad a game of it only briefly. The first period ended with Allegany in front, 14-9, and from that point on it was strictly no contest. The Bulldogs managed only four points in the middle two periods and trailed 45-13 as the final quarter got under way

Vandenberg, after accounting for eight of the Campers' first nine points, collected only five more before he was removed with six minutes left in the game.

However, he dominated both back boards all evening and blocked numerous shots. His mere presence on the floor seemed to discourage the Bulldogs' offensive Jimmy Bell and Larry Snyder, only starters returning from last year's WMI co-championship squad, both had hot hands in the second half and along with Vandenberg and Paul Light finished in double figures.

Packers Favored To Whip Rams And Qualify For NFL Title Game

Green Bay Win Will Earn Shot At New Yorkers

Lions' Victory, Packers' Defeat

Would Tie Race

By DICK JOYCE UPI Sports Writer

The Green Bay Packers are prohibitive favorites to beat the weak Los Angeles Rams Sunday and thus qualify to meet the New York Giants in the National Football League's championship playoff for the second straight year. The Detroit Lions, however, have a longshot chance for the Western Division title. The Lions. who meet the Bears at Chicago Sunday, would need a victory and a Green Bay loss in order to wind up in a tie for first place and force a division playoff at Detroit, Dec. 23. The San Francisco Forty-Niners and the Cleveland Browns play their season finale on Saturday in a nationally-televised game which CBS will televise from San Francisco, starting at 4:30 p.m.

Giants Host Cowboys In Sunday's other games, the Giants, winners of the Eastern Division championship, host the Dallas Cowboys; the Pittsburgh Steelers visit the Washington Redskins; the Baltimore Colts are at home against the Minnesota Vikings and the Philadelphia Eagles are on the road against the St. Louis Cardinals.

If the Lions win, they will have to wait and hope for another crack at the Packers. The Lions-Bears game will be over approximately the same time the Packers and Rams get underway. Detroit defeated Chicago, 11-3, in their previous clash this year. Playable Bowl

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it: AXYDLBAAXB is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

"Informational picketing" at Allegany Ballistics Laboratory this month which resulted in a construction work stoppage at the rocket research center was in violation of the Taft-Hartley Act, a representative of the National Labor Relations Board said yesterday

On December 4 when pickets carried placards stating "Informational Picket Only," about 175 construction workers refused to cross the picket line. The issue appeared to be a demand for representation of two Associated Trades and Crafts union workers by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, said ABL. Yesterday, A. E. Magoo New Scrooge For Christmas Carol

A Christmas tradition during the high-riding days of radio was Charles Dickens "A Christmas Carol" with the late Lionel Barrymore in the tragicomedy role of Ebenezer Scrooge. No actor since has quite been able to fill Mr. Barrymore's shoes when it came to portraying the grasping miser who turns philantrophist after a series of ghostly visions of the past, present and future.

On Tuesday evening, December 18 over NBC-TV, a new Scrooge will be unveiled to millions of television viewers-and he will look mighty familiar. An hourlong musical adaptation of Dickens' classic in color and in animation will star the nearsighted Mr. Magoo in a special holiday show, "Mr. Magoo's Christmas Carol."

Veteran movie and TV actor Jim Backus will provide the rasping voice for Mr. Magoo, as he has done for more than 500 cartoons in which the irascible little man blinkingly blunders his way through life.

The musical score will be provided by Jule Styne with lyrics by Robert Merrill. UPA, producers of the show, hope the program will become a Christmas perennial along with "The Wizard of Oz" and "Amahl and the Night Visitors.

Backus, who created Magoo a number of years ago, said the show hewed closed to the original novella by the famed English writer who penned it almost a century ago. "One doesn't tamper with a classic of this stature," he added. "Mobs of howling Dickens fans would rise up in rebellion throughout the country. We would all be swinging from yardarms.'

Millions of Mr. Magoo fans will be pleased to note also that Backus has not changed his creation's belligerent manner of speaking. "Usually the voice of cartoon characters are pretty anonymous and really not memorable," he added, "but Magoo is Magoo and we couldn't change his bellow for all the money in the world. He may not be as old as Scrooge, but he has a pretty large following, too."

who give life to the animated characters and whose faces would be more familiar than their voices, are Morey Amsterdam of "The Dick Van Dyke Show": Royal Dano, well-known character actor who has played Abraham Lincoln on TV: singer Jane Kean, who recently appeared in "Carnival" on Broadway, and Jack Cassidy, well-known Broadway and recording star, who portrays Bob Crachit.

Henry G. Sapersten, president of UPA, said, "We think we have created something that will be shown every Christmas for years to come. We hope we have contributed something to the holiday spirit and the feeling of good will that the season engenders.'

David Brinkley recalls that once people used to aim to get 40 Heaven, not to the moon.

'No' Important

Leslie Uggams thinks it isn't important for a girl to know all the answers as it is for her to "NO" most of the questions.

Hymns Carry Importance For Ol' Ernie

"Of all the kinds of singing I have done, there's one that has always been of the greatest importance to me," says the star of ABC-TV's "Tennessee Ernie Ford Show.

"That is the singing of hymns, spirituals and gospel songs." Ernie recently had published his book of favorite hymns drawn from the scores used on his daytime TV series. "There's a well of sacred songs so deep that you can dip in it all your life and it will never run dry," explains Ford. "I think the main purpose of singing these songs is enjoyment. Some hymns may be a bit more on the serious side and some spirituals may move faster and you'll want to clap your hands. Whether the tempo is fast or slow or the song is sung by one person or a huge choir, the same message is there.

"Of all the singing I do, the hymns, spirituals and gospel songs not only give me pleasure, but seem to be something that truly needs to be done. I'm mighty glad that many people feel the same way. Sure, some of them may get all steamed up about big new love songs that come along, but let's not forget that hymns and spirituals are the finest love songs of them all.

Of all the hymns sung by Ernie on his show, the one most requested is "Rock of Ages."

Says Ol' Ern, "It's the best hymn in the English language."

Actor Has Problem

Gavin MacLeod has a weight problem. When he arrived in Hollywood two years ago he weighed only a trim 168 pounds. Today he's a hefty 227 pounds. He said the front office told him to keep his weight steady and that was his problem.

Says Gavin, "I'm not eating as much anymore."

Yvonne 'Constant' Success

"I went home after being on the 'Tonight Show' and I watched myself talking to Johnny Carson on my own television screen. Thees blonde girl, thees is me? I cannot believe I look so . . . so sophisticated, but there I am." There she is indeed! Long-legged, blonde, brown-eyed Yvonne Constant, dancer by training, actress by happy chance and a singer through her willingness to give it a whirl. And now another unexpected career seems about to come her way-that of a panelist on NBC-TV's "Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson" (Monday through Friday, 11:15 p. m. to 1

a. m. EST in color). Following Yvonne's first appearance on "Tonight" her voice and looks won her the chance to replace dancer Noelle Adam in the Broadway musical "No Strings." Actually, it was her third Broadwas very nice. I only had a week to learn the role and I hadn't danced for more than a year, so maybe I should blame 'Tonight' for my sore muscles. I cannot sit, I cannot stand." "I still can't get used to seeing myself on screen. I don't think of myself as so . . well, maybe the word is provocative. But she is on the screen, that blonde girl. And Johnny Carson says 'and here she is, Yvonne

Constant' . . . well, it's a long way from Paris.'
